Intended method of Distribution

This product should be distributed by professional insurance brokers to customers either on an advised or non-advised basis. There should be no more than one distributor in the distribution chain.

Distribution costs, fees and remuneration

As part of our assessment, we have not considered the specific distribution costs of any one broking firm. You should therefore assure yourself that your own fee structure is compliant with your regulatory obligations. If you have any concerns over the impact that your fee structure may have on our products, then please contact us.

Other information which may be relevant to distributors

We are satisfied that the pricing, the cover, the design of the product, the claims settlement process and the distribution methods we have chosen result in a product that represents fair value to our end customers.

This product does not adversely impact vulnerable customers and delivers outcomes that are the same as those for customers with no characteristics of vulnerability.

As part of the process of assessment, we have reviewed, amongst other things:

- General market pricing
- Our pricing in relation to the product loss ratio
- Product value over a reasonably foreseeable future period
- Renewal retention
- Mid-term cancellations rates
- Operational and claims service levels and outcomes
- Customer complaints
- Distributor feedback
- Our pay-aways and the general distribution costs of our broker panel as disclosed to us.
- Customer needs and any changes in the last 12 months

We have also considered the pricing and premiums in relation to FCA regulations in PS21/5, ICOBS 6B and Consumer Duty and are satisfied we comply with the necessary requirements.

As part of our assessment, we concluded that time will not diminish the value of the product to the end customer.

- The customer may report a claim on the last day of the policy period and receive a settlement that would not be distinctly different to the settlement he would have received had he reported the claim on the first day of the period of insurance.
- The product is priced on the customer’s current features rather than their features at inception (e.g., the product allows mid-term adjustments).

The product also contains provisions to protect against the erosion of value over subsequent renewals and policy periods.

This document should be read in conjunction with the Policy Wording for the product..
